Q&A: PhDs in Research

June 15th, 2020

1:00-2:00 pm CT

Part of RAISN's mission is to increase awareness of career opportunities in research audiology. We are holding three virtual Q & A sessions this summer to give AuD/PhD students and other professionals a chance to explore what career options look like in different settings. This is a great chance to ask questions and learn more about what the field of research audiology involves. Our first session focuses on opportunities with a PhD. Please visit our Facebook page for more details and the link for the livestream event. If you have questions or are interested in being a panelist for one of our future Q & A sessions, please email Sara Fultz at sara.fultz@boystown.org. Help us have an engaging event by sharing this event with students and other professionals interested in research at your organization.

Meet the Panelists

Ben Kirby, AuD, PhD

Dr. Kirby received his AuD and PhD from the University of Iowa. He completed a post-doctoral fellowship at Boys Town National Research Hospital. He is an Assistant Professor of Audiology at the University of North Texas. Dr. Kirby's research interests include pediatric assessment, auditory cognition, and cochlear implants.

Adam Svec AuD, PhD

Dr. Svec currently holds a dual appointment in the Center for Applied and Translational Sensory Science (CATSS) at the University of Minnesota as a Research Scientist for GN Hearing A/S and as a Staff Scientist for the Department of Speech-Language Hearing Sciences. He completed an Au.D./Ph.D. under the guidance of Dr. Peggy Nelson at the University of Minnesota in 2015.

Michelle Pho, AuD, PhD

Dr. Pho received her AuD and PhD from the University of Texas at Austin in 2010 and 2013. She practices as a pediatric audiologist at Dell Children's Medical Center with a focus in early detection of pediatric hearing loss, and in 2019 assumed leadership over the teams at DCMC and Dell Children's Ear Nose Throat Center in Austin. She is a lecturer on the audiology faculty at UT Austin. Additionally, she is involved in the collaboration of multiple research initiatives through the university and the hospital.

RAISN Member Spotlight

This month's RAISN member spotlight is Shauntelle Cannon. Dr. Cannon received her clinical doctorate of audiology in 2017 from the University of North Carolina at – Chapel Hill. She went on to work as a research audiologist at Boys Town National Research Hospital assisting in studies of voice emotion recognition by various populations with hearing loss and who are cochlear implant users. She will be starting her PhD this coming fall at The Ohio State University with a focus on age-related changes in the vestibular and balance systems.

Full-text can be provided by emailing us, if not available through the link. If you would like to submit a recent publication or achievement for our newsletter, please send us an email!
